

About Us

James 'Gramps' Curtis

is the Principal Author of the EvangelismGold.com Library and President of its owner company
Work.Space Programming

11489 Holiday Way, Hillsboro, OH 45133-9368 USA

A 50 gallon milk shake stirred with an outboard motor, the author helped stage, introduced him as a Youth For Christ leader in southern Ohio. He also witnessed parents turning their incorrigible son over to the juvenile court.

Mr. Curtis has calibrated intercontinental ballistic missile guidance systems. On the other hand he has seen many Alaskan children whose lives had no direction while he served as a radar repairman in the Regular Air Force.

He has taught teen Sunday school classes and then served as a corporation computer instructor of many older adults.

Making computers from cardboard boxes for his junior church in central Ohio while building a burden in youth for missions, starting in their own back yards.

Serving as a boys-ranch house parent he saw the youthful result of dysfunctional families.

His skills have created online corporate safety manuals and bilingual websites for aviation missionaries.

Mr. Curtis has been authoring stories, poems, and lessons for youth that stress the contemporary value of God's Precious Word in molding character, and optimizing computing efforts.

